BACKGROUND

I began my career in the recording industry, working as a staff and then freelance engineer at a number of the most respected commercial recording studios in Los Angeles. It was during this time that I became acclimated to the realities of the entertainment industry: learning to compose myself in a professional manner under duress, maintaining deadlines, and outputting a consistent degree of work that would ultimately be viewed/experienced by the public. In the years since, I have taken this general ethos, as well as my acquired technical skills, to the Post Production industry. Here at MICDI Productions, I continue on with my colleagues to deliver the quality of work that has become expected of a company with our reputation and history.
